METHODOLOGY

The American Lawyer surveyed the country's largest and highest-grossing firms, including the 250 biggest firms as ranked by The National Law Journal plus a few included in The American Lawyer's Am Law 200 but not in the NLJ 250.

Firms are identified by the office with the largest concentration of attorneys. If a firm has no more than 45 percent of its attorneys in one region, it is considered national. If more than 40 percent of the attorneys are located outside the United States, the firm is designated international.
